Inside Stories

"My favorite part of my job is being involved in bringing the product to market, including contracting, product realization and marketing. It's extremely exciting to have a say in how customers are going to get, use, pay for and receive support for a product."

Kate, LDP Graduate

"I like the challenge of balancing company and customer needs. On top of being a manager, I work at the intersection of motivating people, and getting our processes, systems and policies right. It's a great opportunity for me to learn."

Joshua, LDP

Check Out All The Things You'll Learn

What can you expect from the LDP? Well, you'll complete three customized job rotations. This includes two supervisory roles in high-growth areas of the company like Technology and Customer Care. You'll also gain a global perspective in other functional areas, including Mobility, Marketing, Sales and Finance (just to name a few).

The goal? To expand your management and leadership skills. Not to mention gain exposure, interact with senior leaders and get helpful feedback – all while establishing a long-term career.
